TDI publishes the GA-SK four times a year to provide information about telecommunications and media access for people who are deaf, late-deafened, hard-of-hearing or deaf-blind. GA (Go Ahead) and SK (Stop Keying) are the two most frequently used abbreviations in telegraphy and TTY conversations. You may freely copy and distribute all or portions of the GA-SK for non-commercial use with credit given to TDI. TDI has no affiliation with any company advertised, and the mention of company names, products and services in the articles therein comes solely from the author's own experiences and does not imply accuracy nor endorsement by TDI. Furthermore, TDI does not warrant any product or service mentioned herein to be in compliance with Section 255 of the Telecommunications Act of 1996, Section 508 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, or any other Federal, state or local laws.
